31st October - 7th November 2021

Together for Our Planet

Scottish Interfaith Week is building speed and we are hearing of amazing events being planned by communities across Scotland. Don't forget we have many resources on our website to help you plan your event!

We have also just launched our Young People's Competition on the theme of Together For Our Planet. If you are a teacher or involved in youth work, this is a great way to get young people engaged in interfaith and climate work

Young People's Competition

Billions of people take part in religious festivals every year, but we rarely talk about the environmental impact of these celebrations.

We're inviting young people from across Scotland to find new ways to make religious festivals more ecofriendly!

For information on prizes, submission date and resources, visit our website.

Submit your events

You can submit your event right up until Monday 18 October but the earlier we get your event, the sooner we can promote it. We can promote your event across social media to our diverse audience in Scotland and beyond.

Climate Fringe Week

Find new ways to engage in climate action through this year's Climate Fringe Week (18-26 September 2021).

Eco-Congregation Scotland are holding a Climate Vigil, InnerSpace Glasgow are hosting a meditation on inner change, and Meadowbank Church are hosting an art exhibition with prayers and reflections.
